Good afternoon,

Thank you for contacting the U.S. Environmental Agency's Region 8 Denver office. We appreciate your interest and concern about the Dakota Access Pipeline. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) does not have an approval or permitting role in the project. However, under EPA's National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) authority we provided comments in January and March of 2016 to the Army Corps of Engineers regarding its draft environmental assessment for the Dakota Access Pipeline. EPA's comments are part of the public record on this matter. Please find the letters online at <https://www.epa.gov/nepa/region-8-comment-letter-dakota-access-pipeline-project>.

The Army Corps of Engineers is the appropriate authority and best resource for questions regarding status and next steps. If you have a local health or safety concern, please contact the local public health department or state authority about the specific matter.

Thanks,

Katherine

Comments: Hello, one of your representatives called in during the crisis at Standing Rock last night to Kevin Gilbertt while he was reporting the action live and told you about the violations of aircraft flying overhead without lights on and possibly spraying substances. I would further like to add that we were trying to connect you with Digital Smoke Signals (look them up on Facebook) who have been using drones to record illegal action, to get some of the footage into your hands regarding this. My friend, William Jerome, is currently out there, working with Digital Smoke Signals, and was able to finally catch some of the planes at night without their lights on and would like to share the footage with you. He is staying with the Sacred Stone Camp in a yurt and his number is: [Ex. 6 - Personal Privacy] Thank you for looking into this illegal activity for them. We greatly appreciate it. Feel free to contact me if needed.
